MARYSVILLE PRISONER MAKES ESCAPE

MABEL CHAMPION'S ESCAPE SUPPOSED TO BE INSIDE JOB

Attorney General Crabbe Was Asked Tuesday to Take Hand in the Investigation of the Escape of the Prisoner From the Reformatory—Night Guard Suspected.

Convinced that the escape of Mrs. Mabel Champion from the Ohio Reformatory Sunday was an "inside job," Mrs. Louise Mittendorf has asked Attorney General Crabbe to send an investigator there to aid in the probe. General Crabbe announced at Columbus that he would confer with the officials of the State Welfare department before determining his course of action.

In the meantime Mrs. Mittendorf is conducting an inquiry of her own, and, altho she is convinced that "the Sphinx woman" was aided in her escape, so far has developed no real clues, she said Tuesday.

Mrs. Mittendorf outlined the escape as follows:

Mabel, in her capacity as assistant to Mrs. Laura Kissinger, night matron slept all day. She arose at 4 in the afternoon and after supper and a recreation period, went on duty each evening at 7 o'clock.

The cottage in which Mrs. Kissinger and Mabel were in charge quartered 50 girls, all of whom were locked in their rooms at night. Thus the matron and her assistant were the only two in the building with access to the corridors.

At 4 o'clock Sunday forenoon, two hours before her tour of duty was completed, Mabel complained of feeling ill and went to her room.

Mrs. Kissinger went off duty at 6 a. m., and her last duty was to see that Mabel was locked in her room.

Mrs. Mittendorf has suspended Mrs. Laura Kissinger until a thorough investigation has been made.

Investigation has revealed that Mrs. Kissinger did not lock Mabel's room on Sunday morning.

One of the duties of the day matron was to see that Mabel was awakened at 4 p. m. When the day matron went to perform this duty Sunday afternoon, she found the room unlocked and Mabel gone. In her bed was a blanket wrapped up to resemble a human body and a boudoir cap on the pillow.

The night matron's post is on the first floor. Mabel's room was on the second floor. In order to escape Mabel was forced to walk past the matron's desk and unlocked two doors.

Walking from the institution to a Marysville hotel, Mabel asked the night clerk to call her a taxi. This night clerk was a new man. He complied, not surmising that the woman with two traveling bags was an escaped inmate.

The taxi driver likewise was not suspicious. He took Mabel to Springfield, where she is believed to have boarded a train for the west. In the meantime, institution officials were ignorant until afternoon of her escape.

To piece up the broken thread of what happened from the time Mabel went to her room and the day matron came on duty is the task of Mrs. Mittendorf.

Scales 23,290-Foot Peak

Buenos Aires.—Mount Aconcagua, the highest peak in the Andes, towering 23,290 feet above sea level, has been scaled by M. F. Ryan, an English railway engineer, who had made two previous attempts to conquer the peak.

The summit of Aconcagua has been reached by only two other climbers.

Mrs. Champion was serving a 20 year term for killing Edward O'Connell in a Cleveland restaurant in July, 1922.

"She was not allowed under prison rules to have any money," L. M. Mittendorf, husband of the matron said, "but we find from an investigation here and at Springfield she was plentifully supplied when she purchased a ticket at the Pennsylvania station."

INSPIRING MEETING AT U. B. CHURCH

Singing Under the Direction of Rev. Welch—Powerful Sermons Given.

There was a glorious good meeting Tuesday evening at the United Brethren church. If you have not begun to start to the services or have dropped out you are missing a blessing. There was an exceptionally fine choir and Rev. Welch seemed at his best in directing and also in the special solo he sang just before the sermon, "My Best Friend." Rev. Welch seems to have the happy gift of getting people to sing and of leading them into the prayerful state that is so helpful and so needful to a meeting.

If one person has expressed the fact, many folks have, that when you miss one of Rev. Hiles' messages you miss something and surely Tuesday evening that was proven.

He preached a wonderful, touching spirit-filled sermon, built around the text "And Andrew Took His Brother, Simon Peter, to Jesus." He made it clear that each and everyone of us, however great or humble we may be must do our part in soul winning that the world may be saved. If one of us fails to take the message to that one, then we only can reach, then that soul is forever lost and that message will never be given. Have we mothers and fathers today done all we could, have we tried to bring our sons and daughters to Christ, or are we expecting our neighbors to do it. He cited the expression of an eminent man of God, who said if he could not convert his own child, big or little that is bring him to Christ, then he would close his Bible and leave the sacred desk.

So clearly and so powerfully did he preach that mighty convictions came and at the close of the sermon there was an outpouring of the spirit of God and four young ladies consecrated themselves and their talents to God. Many were the happy faces and many were the joyous hearts around the sacred altar as God's blessing fell and the meeting closed with great rejoicing. Rev. Gibson of the Ringgold U. B. church and Rev. D. S. Mills were visitors and lent their aid in the services. Come and get a blessing, do some personal work today and bring an unsaved friend tonight, and see what the Lord will do for you.

ETHEL BAKER PASSED AWAY AT HOME IN ROCK RAPIDS

Died at Home of Parents in Monroe Township—Funeral Friday.

Ethel Marie Baker died this morning at 3 o'clock at the home of her parents in Monroe township.

She was the daughter of Lawson S. and Eliza Funk Baker and was born in Monroe township this county, on the 13th day of October, 1896.

She is survived by her parents and the following brothers and sisters; Floyd, Evalena and Francis.

DR. THOMPSON PROPOSED AS MODERATOR

The name of Dr. W. O. Thompson, president of Ohio State university, is being suggested for the moderatorship of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church, which will hold its annual session in Columbus in May it was learned Tuesday.

The coming of the general assembly to Columbus this year is in recognition of the twenty-fifth anniversary of Dr. Thompson's presidency of the university and for this reason he was made the general chairman of arrangements.

It now is being suggested by Dr. Edward A. Kraft, pastor of First Presbyterian church, that this recognition and honor be continued by electing Dr. Thompson as moderator.

DR. VAN VOLENHAVEN

Belles of a Century Ago Notable for Small Feet

Berlin.—A controversy about the relative size of the feet of modern woman and the belles of a century ago has been started by an exhibition here of the shoe styles of 1925. Many of the shoes of celebrated actresses and beauties of 100 and even 50 years ago are so small that the women of today refuse to believe they were really worn by normal persons. Few of the old-time slippers and shoes are larger than a modern No. 3, and many of them are shorter.

Mrs. N. H. May, Native of Circleville Died in Iowa March 26.

Mrs. Elizabeth Brobeck May, wife of N. H. May, died at the family home in Rock Rapids early Wednesday morning after a lingering illness. The funeral will be held at the Congregational church Friday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. Carl P. Bast conducting the services.

Elizabeth Brobeck was born in Pickaway county, Circleville, Ohio, December 31, 1860. On December 1, 1886, she was united in marriage to Rev. N. H. May. Four sons were born to them—Shirley Leland, who is a dentist at Egan, South Dakota; Howard Stanley, who is employed as a mechanical engineer on the Erie railroad, living in Chicago; Dorsey and Gurney Gordon, two brothers, both registered pharmacists and located at Egan, South Dakota and Rock Rapids, respectively. All were present at their mother's death.

Immediately after their marriage, Rev. and Mrs. May settled at Joslyn, Illinois, where Rev. May held his first pastorate in the United Brethren church. Several years later they moved to Moline, Iowa, and then to Berwick, where Rev. May accepted the pastorate of the Congregational church and with which denomination they had been connected ever since.

In 1906 they moved to western South Dakota, where they took up a homestead and at the same time were engaged in pioneer home missionary work. In 1909 they moved to Willow Lake, South Dakota, and in 1915 to Wagner, Rev. May holding the pastorate of the Congregational church in each place. In the fall of 1916 they moved to Yankton, South Dakota, in order to secure the advantages of a college for their youngest boys. They remained until July, 1924, when they moved to Rock Rapids, Mrs. May and her son, Gurney, entering the drug business.

Mrs. May was an efficient helper to her husband in his work as minister. She took an active part in the Sunday school and Women's organizations; she was the director of the church choir and active leader for the young people; she shared with her husband the pastoral cares in all his charges. Her radiant personality, sympathetic counsel and friendly interest won many lasting friendships. Her spirit of devotion and sacrifice, as well as her splendid abilities, were particularly revealed on the pioneer fields of South Dakota.

During the greater part of her life Mrs. May was afflicted with various physical ailments, but she never complained. While residing at Willow Lake, she had an operation for gallstones at Rochester, Minnesota. In September, 1923, at Yankton, South Dakota, she had an operation for a tumor, which the doctors subsequently found to be of a malignant nature. It was this malady that gradually sapped her strength and caused her death. During the last few months she suffered considerably, but with admirable patience and cheerfulness. On Monday she sank into a state of coma and remained unconscious to the end.

Mrs. May was a member of the First Congregational church at Yankton, South Dakota, at the time of her death. She was also a member of the Rebekah lodge and a past noble grand of that order.—Rock Rapids Review.

Rev. May is a brother of Hon. John L. May, of Walnut township.

School's Graduate Hall Once Was Private Fort

New York.—Local tradition has it that the newly opened Graduate hall of New York university was the private fortress of a successful business man of little old New York during the Civil war. He had joined the fashionable migration from the heart of the city below Fourteenth street to the purlieus of the Bronx, where the lowing of cows was not to give way to the roar of the "L" for more than half a century.

This timorous gentleman was extremely nervous about the possibility of southern gunboats invading the Harlem river and because of his fears made his house into a veritable fortress, with gray stone walls from two to four feet thick. From the square surmounting tower, which served as a lookout, he had a view of the surrounding country as far as Long island sound and New York bay.

With rare foresight the emigre surrounded his house with a moat 20 feet wide. A drawbridge extended over it from the front entrance to the south. After the danger of Confederate shells and draft riots disappeared, the owners probably decided that a moat, although picturesque, was not as practical as a veranda, which now entirely surrounds the house. Shortly after the Civil war the moat was filled in.

Gloves That Fit Last Longer, Says an Expert

Upon the efficiency of that first fitting, as you buy your gloves, depends largely their permanent fit, advises an expert in the Kansas City Star. Sizes are satisfactory as preliminary guide; but the proper "set" of the glove to the hand is insured only by careful fitting.

Seat yourself comfortably for the process, sitting sideways, with your elbow on the protecting cushion. Unless you are left-handed, in which case your left hand naturally will be the larger, give the saleswoman your right hand to measure and fit.

During that first fitting at the store, and at subsequent times when you put the gloves on yourself—particularly while they are still new—these rules should be considered. New gloves should be drawn on gradually, never forced on, or pushed down between the fingers. A glove never should be held by the corners, as it is being fitted on, but by the center of its back. It should be drawn off backwards, rather than pulled off by the finger tips.

Do not buy a glove which needs to be stretched at the wrist. If it does not clasp easily, it is too small, and is likely to tear out around the clasps at once.

If your hands are normal—that is, of average shapeliness, and not particularly thick or thin, with medium length fingers—you will want to be fitted with regulation-sized gloves. That is, the exact size of gloves which the measurement of your hand indicates is the one which will fit you.

But if the flesh of your hand is extremely solid, and your fingers are thick and heavy-jointed, you will want a glove larger than the regulation size. Conversely, if the flesh on your hand is quite soft and flabby, you may wear a smaller glove—probably about half a size smaller—than the measurement indicates. If your hand is thin, you will want a long, narrow glove. And if your hand is stout and firm, see that you are fitted with an extremely elastic glove.

In fact, elasticity of the leather always has a great deal to do with the final fit and satisfaction that you can get out of a glove.

Best-Dressed Women Have Fewest Clothes

The best-dressed women in Paris are those who have the fewest clothes, writes a Paris correspondent in the New York Herald-Tribune. Fewest clothes means the fewest at a time, but those are always the exactly correct thing for the occasion. It is obvious that the wardrobe which is limited to the dernier cri gives much more chic than quantities of clothes left over from seasons gone by, and a woman who strives to keep up with the kaleidoscopic fashion changes of today must have only a few clothes at a time, else they become demodé almost before they are worn.

Two afternoon dresses, two evening dresses and one morning frock, together with two coats, one for day and one for evening, make up an ample allowance for chic clothes, but these must be renewed every two months. So, after all, it is not an economical wardrobe that one has in this way, but it is sure to be smart and up to the minute. Many women make the mistake of buying too many frocks at a time, and all consequently become passe before they have given sufficient service.

The almost imperceptible changes that take place in fashions from day to day make quite a marked difference in the styles two months apart. Invariably a season begins with elaborate models and it just as surely finishes in simplicity. Thus, if the form in fashion does not change, the method of working it does.

ADDRESS OF GEORGE BOPE MONDAY NIGHT

Much First Hand Information
Given in Talk at Knights of Pythias Hall.

Colonel George W. Bope, of Columbus, on Monday evening at the K. of P. hall delivered a most interesting address on immigration.

—Mr. Bope was Chairman of the Immigration Board of Review at Washington and for a time at Ellis Island during the administration of President Harding and was brought face to face with immigration as it is. As Chairman of the Immigration Board, Mr. Bope met the immigrant problem in the Department of Labor, the Bureau of Immigration,
the Department of State, the Department of Justice, in the United States Senate and the House, at Ellis Island and with representatives from foreign embassies. Thus his discussion of the immigration question comes first-hand.

"Much is being said these days by President and preacher, statesman
and lawyer, judge and professor,
publicist and politician about immigration. As yet, the great body of our people seem to stand as though mute, palsied and paralyzed pertaining to this outstanding, far-reaching and important American problem.

"The right to regulate immigration is inherent in every government.
It is a domestic question with which no other nation, rightfully,
may interfere, so long as treaty obligations are not violated, Japan's recent gesture to the contrary.

"In America there are three schools of thought on immigration.
One school would grant admittance to those only whom we select. Another school would admit nobody.
The third would admit everybody.
With the latter, apparently, it is not a question of 'America First' but
'America Last.' "

"Of course, originally, the entire
body of our people were immigrants.
The early settler was the boldest, the bravest and the most enterprising of all Europe. He was a Knight Errant of the American wilderness. The men who settled in Virginia did not go there to 'get a job.' The pioneers of New England did not go there for a better day's pay. They went there with one intent and purpose—a home in America and a government different from those which they had left behind. So that, straightway, they set about to mold and build the greatest nation in the tide of time.

"But the early immigrant times have changed and the latter-day immigrant has changed with them.
The majority of those who have come to us within the last thirty-five years, especially from the South and East of Europe, never had any intention of becoming American citizens. They are not of the stuff from which Americans are made.

They came, chiefly, because more money could be made here, and oft times with the ultimate hope of 'getting theirs' and then back to the homeland.

"Last July, what is known as the 'Immigration Act of 1924' became operative. Time would fail us if we undertook here and now any extended discussion of this new immigration law. Suffice it to say that under it we have 'selective immigration' after a fashion. At its worst, however, it is a long stride in the right direction. An outstanding feature is the provision that a preliminary examination of the alien be made in his homeland. Always should it have been so. 'Over seas'
is the proper place for us to examine and select.

"Under the new law, more immigrants are permitted to come from the North and West of Europe than from the South and East. Southern Europe complains that that provision is a discrimination against her people. Verily so! But history is inexorable. Gauged by her cold and luminous eyes, better that we take from the Nordics (if that be not a delusion) who are of the stock that made this country than from the flotsam and jetsam of other quarters of the globe, thereby permitting
the latter class to turn this country into what Theodore Roosevelt described as a 'polyglot boarding house.'

"The presumption is that under the new law we will have less of a former bad thing. May be not. The proponents of the new Act argue that it will halt the tide. I doubt it. Upon the other hand, it will cause more immigrant smuggling. Until the new law is materially strengthened,
the 'deliveries' by the 12-mile liquor fleets will pale into insignificance by way of comparison with the contraband immigrant squadrons. Right now Mexico is overrun by a horde
from the South and East of Europe awaiting the dry season that they may wade or paddle across the Rio Grande. In Cuba there is a like number seeking to be brought in by the rum runners. Immigrant smuggling has grown to be a better paying business than liquor smuggling—and with less hazard. Surprisingly and otherwise, there is a continuous and never decreasing flow of immigrants into Canada whose intended and ultimate destination is the United States; and, by the tens of thousands, they creep through or are sneaked across the border in the night season by hired, paid professional 'smugglers.'

"The Mexican border—a stretch of 2,100 miles—has only a scant number of immigrant inspectors.
Our Canadian frontier is but little,
if any, better off. Thus it is manifest that the fences against unlawful entry are not well kept. Of late we have the airplane 'bootlegging'
aliens from foreign contiguous territory by the thousands. So that, even under the new law, it is not a rash prediction that when we add to the figure of lawful entries the ever increasing army of 'bootlegged' and smuggled aliens, we yet will be flirting with the annual mark of a million.

"Because of our failure to guard the gates, in the last 35 years the greed of steamship companies, the activities of European Emigrant Aid Societies and the 'round up' by American labor agencies have dumped millions of aliens upon our shores. These millions fairly teemed with men, women and children who were physically, mentally and morally deficient and unfit—men, women and grown up children who were illiterate in any language. These millions literally swarmed with the crippled, the lame, the blind, the diseased, criminals, degenerates, paupers and public charges.

"Among these millions came the Communist, who, with glittering eye
and forked tongue, challenges Lincoln's pronouncement at Gettysburg.
Among these millions came the 'red flagger' who would ingraft into our industrial life the deadly nightshade of syndicalism, and inoculate the whole fabric of popular government with the poison fang of mobocracy.

Among these millions came the nihilistic 'left-winger' whose business it is to incite and foster insurrection, revolution and rebellion.

"Down at Ellis Island, through an interpreter, I put the question to one of this clement if he believed in the destruction and overthrow of ordered and organized government? His answer was: "Me no believe in overthrow—blow her up." The man was honest about it. He had lived and moved and had his being in an atmosphere of negation and destruction; he was tinctured and tainted with Europe's 'Hymn of Hate.' It is fatuous folly to attempt to ingrain in the moral and intellectual fibre of such immigrants even a scintilla of the teachings, traditions and aspirations of our national life. He who talks about 'Americanizing' this element is a loquacious, simpering,
chatter-box verbarian.

"I am not so sure but that a majority of our people have about reached the conclusion that we would do well to 'padlock' the gates until we have Americanized and citizenized such as we can, and then deport the 'slag.' The gates should open outward to every alien who has been here long enough to complete his citizenship, but neglected to do it. Superannuated, dilapidated first papers 'don't go.' Finish the job or get out. For years we have proceeded upon the theory that we were a vast 'melting pot.' But the 'slag' did not melt. That some of the elements did melt only makes the non-fused dross stand out in bolder relief.

"There is a large and influential body of our people, and they are Americans too, who urge that we could grant admittance to many more millions of immigrants before we would even approach the density of population per square mile in many European countries. Even so,
but why should we permit the bilge
water of the Old World to overflow and soak this country to the 'saturation point' and thereby suffer all the burdens and ills that go hand in hand with over-population? With no immigration, your children will live to see the day when continental United States will number a population of two hundred millions. When that time comes, more thoughtful consideration will be given to 'America First.' If we are to go on taking the millions of Old World mis-fits and un-fits, who, in fifty years from now, will take ours."

Beauty and the Brute

"He had pretended to be what she thought him, a strong, ruthless brute.
Women liked that kind of man, only there weren't any, really. No men that he knew were strong, or brutes.
They were weak, really, and shy, and lonely, only they couldn't admit it, because their women wouldn't love them
if they did."—From "Three Pilgrims
and a Tinker," by Mary Borden.

LOANS up to $500

We say that City Loan service is popular because our loans are geared to meet the exact needs of the greatest number of people.

Farmers can borrow in the spring to carry themselves thru the growing seasons. Salaried people and wage earners have from six to twenty months to repay. All can profit by the service, and can use it again and again, once their credit is established.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture.
It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery.

CROSS-WORD PUZZLE No. 39

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle.
Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

Sweden Plans Material
Reduction in Its Army

Stockholm.—Drastic reductions in the personnel of the Swedish army have been proposed by the government in line with a general policy of economy.

It is regarded as probable that a bill reducing the army from six to four army corps will be introduced in parliament during the coming session. The navy, under present plans, will not be affected.

The government plan is to cut down the number of infantry regiments from 30 to 18, and artillery regiments from six to three. Training for the infantry would be decreased from 255 days to 140 each year, and for the artillery and other troops from 260 to 240.

The plan is based upon the theory that Sweden's military position is greatly better now than in 1914, and the fact that Sweden has no common frontier with Russia.

Court Rules Teeth
Not Part of Body

Potsdam, Germany.—It's no crime here to knock a man's teeth out. A local court decided that there was no "bodily injury" involved when a piano player clipped a guest in a cabaret so hard that eight of his teeth came out. The court reasoned that the teeth—anatomically speaking—were not a part of the body. The learned judge opined that it was simple enough to buy some store teeth to replace the missing eight.

The American Legion

AMERICAN LEGION
FUND IS GROWING

As final preparations were being made in Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky to start active work on the American Legion Endowment fund, preliminary steps were taken to extend the movement to a second group consisting of 12 states, most of them in the South. The states in the second group are: Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Tennessee, West Virginia and Ohio.

At the same time it was announced that Judge Robert W. Bingham of Louisville, editor and publisher of the Louisville Courier-Journal, has accepted the chairmanship of the executive committee to direct the endowment movement in Kentucky.

Stearns post, Stearns, Ky., a mining town with a population of 121, is the first Legion post in the entire country to "go over the top" in the movement. The goal for the post was set at $100. Twenty-four hours after the post learned the amount, a check for $100 was on its way to national headquarters at Indianapolis.

The first posts to send contributions for the fund to national headquarters were Eugene post, Eugene, Ore., and C. H. Berry post, Tamaqua, Penn. The Oregon post sent $75, and the other, $17.13. Adjutant Arthur S. Wolfe, of the Tamaqua post, said, "This represents the voluntary contributions from the members of this post, such contributions having been taken after each post meeting for the last few months."

Cardinal O'Connell of Boston was the first member of the national honorary committee for the fund to contribute to it. His contribution was also among the first received.

Lloyd W. Kendall, Legionnaire of Farmer City, Ill., sent a check for $5 for the fund. "I am very strong for this move," he said, "and only wish I was financially able to donate $50 or $500."

William B. Boggs, commander of the department of Panama, cabled that "the Canal Zone pledges $2,500 to the fund." The foreign departments of the Legion were given no quotas but asked to give what they could. Panama was the first to respond.

Hon. John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President in 1924, cabled from Paris that he is glad to serve as a member of the national honorary committee for the fund. Other recent acceptances on the committee are: Mrs. Mary Lord Harrison, New York city, wife of the late President Benjamin Harrison; William Green, Washington, president of the American Federation of Labor; Otto H. Kahn, New York banker; Will H. Hays, New York city, president of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors, Inc.; John R. Quinn, Los Angeles, past national commander of the American Legion; Bishop Charles H. Brent, Buffalo, chief of the chaplain service in the A. E. F.; Booth Tarkington, Indianapolis, author; V. M. Johnson, Rockford, Ill., president of Kiwanis International; James E. Chandler, Imperial potentate of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine; Charles Dana Gibson, New York city, artist; Gen. James A. Thomas, Dublin, Ga., commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans; Gen. John H. Dunn, Boston, commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; John Drew, New York city, actor.

Predict Veterans Will

Seek State Home Care

"In a few years," predict American Legion officials of Lincoln, Neb., "World war veterans will ask admission in great numbers to state homes, and states throughout the country will have to make proper provision for them." The government has adequate facilities to care for indigent and helpless veterans at present, say the Legionnaires, but later the state will have to supplement government aid.

This prediction was made in the face of a survey revealing that there are fewer soldiers in state homes in Nebraska now than there were in 1921. Deaths among the veterans of the Civil war account for the decrease, the Legionnaires point out. Within a few years World war veterans will be clamoring to enter the state homes, they maintain.

Massachusetts Ahead

At Pittsfield, Mass., recently, for the first time since the inception of the American Legion in Massachusetts, it went into state convention with black ink figures, instead of red ink, on the balance sheet, according to a statement of Treasurer E. W. Gross. Massachusetts department of the Legion was $10,000 in debt in January, 1923; as against the $279.50 to the good at this time.

Cup for Minnesota Post

Gerald V. Barron of Cloquet, Minn., past department commander of the American Legion, announces he will donate a cup to the Legion post in the Department of Minnesota having the best and most consistent record for the past five years. The trophy will be given at the next department convention.

AMUSEMENTS

"Forbidden Paradise" the first American made Paramount picture starring Pola Negri to be directed by Ernest Lubitsch, creator of "Passion," "The Marriage Circle," etc., comes to the Met theater for a run of two days on Wednesday.

The professional reunion of these two in the making of such an important production as "Forbidden Paradise" is significant. It follows a demand which has been constant from critics and the public since their co-operative efforts resulted in one of Europe's most memorable productions.

"Forbidden Paradise" was adapted from the famous stage play, "The Caarina." The screen play, written by Agnes Christine Johnson and Hans Kraly, retains the dramatic suspense which made the stage production notable and introduces many striking new features.

Rod La Rocque, Adolphe Menjou and Pauline Starke are featured in the principal supporting roles in the production. Among others are Fred Malatesta, Nick De Ruiz and Mme D'Aunery.

"Lilies of the Field" Corinne Griffith and Conway Tearle. Boys, this is some picture. Pa'd a good figure, considering the age of it, but business was very good and the compliments on the picture made a fellow feel good. Nothing out of the way, or rather it's handled so cleverly that no one could say anything against it, despite a delicate subject—George J. Ritter, Regent theater, Bogota, New Jersey.

Saturday, April 4th, A. D. 1925, at 1 o'clock P. M. fast time.

This farm consists of 164.30 acres and is located one-half mile west of the west corporation line of the city of Lancaster, Ohio, and opposite the main entrance to the Lancaster Camp Grounds. The buildings are ample and of good quality. The dwelling house is an eight room brick house, beside four room basement under whole house with turnace. One large bank barn and other buildings of good quality ample for the farm. The location of this farm for school and other purposes is ideal. The farm is well watered with wells and never failing springs.

Appraisal $120 per acre aggregating $19,716.

TERMS:—One-third cash on day of sale; the balance in one and two years, secured by mortgage on premises sold.

CAVES OUTLINED IN MILLIONS OF YEARS

Took Ages to Form Wondrous Cavities.

Much has been said since the imprisonment of Floyd Collins in Sand cave in Kentucky about stalactites and stalagmites, those icicles of limestone that hang from the roof and extend up from the floor of such caves. How these deposits came to exist, as well as how the caves themselves were excavated by nature, form an interesting page in the study of geology.

At one time, perhaps a million or more years ago, an ancient sea covered this district. Sedimentary strata of limestone were deposited on the floor of this sea. Often a layer of sandstone was formed. Later, through some upheaval the bottom of the sea arose and became dry land. Then the formation of these caves began.

Limestone is but very little soluble in pure water, but water containing carbon dioxide will easily dissolve the mineral. Rain water, seeping down through the ground, absorbed carbon dioxide from decaying organic matter. Then it would percolate through the less soluble layers of sandstone without affecting them, but when it came to a layer of limestone it would dissolve some particles and carry them off. Thus, through many centuries, an entire stratum of limestone would be dissolved, leaving a cavern, often many feet in height. The ceilings and floors of these caves, as a rule, were strata of sandstone or other rock less soluble than limestone.

After the cavity in the earth was formed, and even before the excavating job was completed, a new process was begun. Perhaps nature regretted having formed such a cavity, or maybe she liked her work so well that she thought she should build columns to support the ceilings of these places. In either case, she started constructing stalactites, hanging down from above and stalagmites reaching up from the floors of the caves. These formations grew in size and length until they often met, forming columns. In some cases the cave would be nearly filled again with the limestone of these stalactites and stalagmites.

Water seeping in from above caused the formation of these limestone icicles. Rainwater, charged with carbon dioxide, would dissolve limestone from rocks above the cave and come to the roof, where it would hang awhile. Here it would lose some of its carbon dioxide by evaporation, and, with its carbon dioxide gone, it would have to give up some of its limestone, since pure water will not hold much of the rock in solution. This limestone would be deposited on the roof of the cave. More and more of the mineral was deposited until the stalactite was formed.

Millions of these drops of water fell to the floor of the cave before they gave up all their carbon dioxide, carrying their little burden of limestone with them. In this case the limestone was deposited on the floor, causing a stalagmite.—Kansas City Star.

Useful Peppermint

Growth and development of the chewing gum habit is having the effect of causing a continual rise in the price of peppermint. The acreage in the production of the plant in two Michigan counties exceeds 4,000 acres. Peppermint as a flavor is today in great demand everywhere. Oil of peppermint is now also employed to test steam boilers. If the odor escapes it indicates that the boiler is unsafe. A boiler that will hold the smell of the oil is said to be capable of holding any pressure to which it is constantly subjected. Peppermint is raised on marsh and formerly given over entirely to the production of hay. The land is used over and over again for the same kind of a crop without rotation, though nutritious peat is employed to maintain the soil in the desired state of fertility. In September the crop is cut with a mowing machine.

Snow Modeling

Snow sculpture is encouraged on school playgrounds in Chicago. All playgrounds competed recently in modeling snow figures, and the results were judged by the city's distinguished sculptor, Lorado Taft.

Water was mixed with the snow to form a heavy slush. The work of modeling was done with wooden paddles, the snow first being packed on a framework of sticks tied together. Pocket knives and bits of tin were used to carve away excess and secure the lines desired. The children worked out a variety of figures. Included in the sculptural productions was an elephant holding his own against an attack by three wolves.

Sardine Industry Big

American sardines are making their way in the world. The quantity and value of sardines exported from this country last year showed an increase of 50 per cent as compared with the amount exported the year before. No fewer than 75 countries are now demanding our sardines in steadily increasing quantities. In 1921 the factories in the United States produced $6,649,000 worth of canned sardines, of which $3,953,000 worth came from Maine and $2,696,000 worth from California.—Youth's Companion.

DEPICT CUSTOMS OF BYGONE AGE

Letters Show Etiquette of Seventeenth Century.

Liverpool.—Letters and other documents dealing with manners and customs of daily life in the Seventeenth century which came to light recently tend to show that it was customary in those days for "persons of quality" to have sets of their own spoons, knives and forks which they took with them when invited out.

These papers are of particular interest just at this time to collectors of antiques in connection with an addition made recently to the British museum. This was the earliest hall-marked table fork known, engraved with the crest of Manners & Montagu, 1632. About the same time a silver spoon of identical hall-mark and crest was taken to Haddon hall.

Books on etiquette and table manners were far from being the prerogative of the Victorian age. It is revealed, as in 1693 there was published in London a book entitled "The Accomplished Lady's Rich Closet of Rarities," in which the following rules are laid down:

"A gentlewoman being at table abroad or at home must observe to keep the body straight, and lean not by any means upon her elbows—nor by ravenous gesture discover a voracious appetite. Talk not when you have meat in your mouth; and do not smack like a pig—or eat speenemeat so hot that tears stand in your eyes.

"It is very uncourtly to drink so large a draught that your breath is almost gone, and you are forced to blow strongly to recover yourself. Throwing down your liquor as into a funnel is an action fitter for a juggler than a gentlewoman.

"In carving at your own table distribute the best pieces first, and it will appear very decent and comely to use a fork; so touch no meat without it."

Reference to the fork was of particular interest to the museum authorities, for those present-day indispensable instruments had not then been long introduced, it appears.

Forks were first imported from Italy, and their use in England at the time was considered pedantic and laughable. One writer of the time speaks of a silver fork as "being used of late by some of our spruce gallants," which did not tend to make the fork popular at all among certain sets.

Wild Animals Losing Fear of Human Beings?

Can familiarity with people bring contempt from wild animals? Members of the predatory animal division of the Department of Agriculture think they should answer this question in the affirmative, especially in the case of that most dreaded of the Northwest's zoology, the cougar. For the first time on record a scourge of cougars is compelling the attention of the authorities. Forty-three reports of depredations by cougars from widely separated sections has aroused action on the part of hunters, trappers and especially the farmers and stock breeders who have suffered direct losses.

It is believed that auto tourists frequenting the woods more and more have caused the roving cougars to lose their fear of the human beings, and the turn-tail-and-run instinct when the odor of man is wafted to their nostrils. During December at least one human life was taken by cougars. An Oleava man, whose torn and mangled body plainly showed the cat-like attack, died while fighting his opponent with a pocket knife. That particular cougar, known by its huge paws, is being hunted diligently by trained and experienced hunters in the Cascade range.

The cougar of the Northwest gets its name from the Latin, meaning "horse pirate." Colts and crippled cayuses are its favorite victims. The big cat is the most elusive, sneaking adroit hider and the shyest thing in the woods. They are probably more numerous than bears, but 25 of the latter are seen to one cougar. A bounty of $20 per cougar is offered by the state, but there are few claims. So shy and cunning are these cats that they are safe in inaccessible crags before men and dogs can overtake them.—Olympia Dispatch to Boston Transcript.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Mrs. Christian Schwarz entertained Saturday with a bridge luncheon and Mrs. Jones on Monday in honor of Miss Lucile Haswell.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Timmons of Zanesville, announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Belle Meredith Timmons, to Mr. Winfield Polk, of Little Rock, Arkansas, at a luncheon given Tuesday by Miss Timmons in honor of her guest, Miss Helen Bennett, of this city.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Lucile Haswell, daughter of Mrs. George R. Haswell, to Mr. Roland Thomas Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wood, of Cleveland, took place Tuesday, March 31, at 12:30 o'clock. Rev. Edwin K. Johnson, the pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, officiated in the presence of sixty-five guests.

The house was beautifully decorated in Southern smilax and jonquils. An altar of ferns formed a background for the bridal party. On either side of the altar were vases of Easter lilies and at the foot yellow pansies.

Miss Anna Schleyer at the piano and Miss Elizabeth Groce, violinist played Lohengrin's wedding march. The bride entered on the arm of her brother, Mr. George Haswell, who gave her in marriage, and she was beautiful in a gown of ivory flat crepe trimmed with handdrawn ecru lace. It was made with an apron effect in front, while long ties fell from the shoulders in the back. On the left shoulder was a spray of orange blossoms. Her arm bouquet was of white roses and sweet peas.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Charles Leon Jones (nee Edith Anderson), of Defiance, and Mrs. Christian Schwarz. Mrs. Jones wore yellow flat crepe and carried lavender sweet peas and jonquils. Mrs. Schwarz's dress was of Nile green crepe-de-chine and her flowers were jonquils and pink sweet peas. Mr. Hugh Wells, of Cleveland, was best man.

The bride's table was centered by the wedding cake surmounted with a miniature bride and groom. Tall yellow candles and bowls of yellow tulips were placed at either end of the table.

The bride and groom left for Cleveland, the bride wearing an ensemble suit of tan flat crepe and dark blue bengaline, trimmed in bands of chinmunk. With this she wore a small tan hat with slippers to match. After 6, they will be at home at 12215 Ashbury Road, Cleveland, Ohio.

Miss Haswell graduated from Everts high school and attended Ohio State university. She is a teacher in the Cleveland public schools. Mr. Wood is a graduate of Case college.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Billins, Miss Billins, Mr. and Mrs. P. Lanman, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Wells, Mrs. Clara Haswell, Mrs. Lee Hinsley and daughter, Patricia, Miss Viola Sperber and Mrs. Joseph Ellis, of Cleveland; Mrs. Walter Eberback, of Port Clinton; Mrs. Charles Leon Jones, Defiance; Mr. and Mrs. Stuart R. Bolin and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Kirkendall, Mrs. Estella K. Brako, Miss Gertrude Rader, Mrs. Mabel K. Nothstine, Mr. H. M. Kronan, Mrs. A. J. Hirtler and son, Billy and Miss Martha Trimble, of Columbus; Miss Belle K. Huber, of Xenia; Mr. William Downs, of Indianapolis, Indiana; Mrs. Stanley B. Macomber, of Boston, Massachusetts.

Oklahoma Town Sinking Into Old Mine Workings

Halleyville, Okla.—Slowly sinking into the bed of a lake, this little mining town, nestled in the hills of southwestern Oklahoma, is making uncanny progress toward oblivion. Inch by inch Halleyville has dropped. Wider and wider, but so slowly that the eye cannot perceive the movement, great cracks in the streets are widening and pushing forward.

Twenty years ago there was a solid vein of good coal under the town, which is built in a cup of the hills. It was mined out of the old Halleyville-Ora mine and the mine abandoned. Pillars held up the tunnels, but in time water seeped in.

Now Halleyville is built on the crust of a subterranean lake. The pillars are shifting and the crust is sinking into the five-foot depth of the lake itself.

Engineers say there is no chance to halt the earth shift until it has found its own bottom. Whether Halleyville will have to be rebuilt on the hills depends on what is found when the movement finally stops, they said.

My Favorite Story

By IRVIN S. COBB

What Aunt Myra Desired

They brought a darky out of the jail in a North Carolina town with intent to hang him for murder. This was in the day when capital punishment was publicly inflicted. As a special mark of attention the widow of the murderer's victim was permitted to witness the event from a position of vantage directly facing the gallows. She had had a sort of small grandstand rigged up and she had decorated it with bunting, and when the march to the scaffold started, there she sat in a white mother-hubbard wrapper gently agitating a palm-leaf fan, flanked and surrounded by relatives, invited friends and sister members of her lodge.

The preliminaries went forward according to the ritual. When the condemned had been properly trussed up, with the noose dangling about his neck, the sheriff, holding the black cap in his hand, edged up to him and said: "Well, Jim, we're about ready. If you've got anything to say, I reckon this would be a mighty good time to say it."

"Yas, suh," said the doomed, "I has got sump'n to say. I jest wants to say dat I is fully repented fur whut I done. I taken it to de Lawd in prayer an' I knows it's all right wid Him. I ast de jedge w'ich tried and de persecutin' attorney, an' de foreman of de jury ef they bore me any grudge, w'ich, one and all, they said they did not. An' now I kin go right straight to hebbin an' nestle in de bosom of Father Abraham ef only I kin git de fergiveness of dat nigger lady sittin' yonder—de wife of de man I kill't."

He lifted his voice, addressing the white-clad figure in front of him:

"Lady," he entreated, "does you fergive me fur shootin' yore husband six times wid a fo'ty-fo' caliber revolver?" Excepting that her under lip jutted out a trifle farther there was no sign she had heard him. She calmly fanned on.

The darky on the scaffold tried again:

"Lady," he pleaded, "for de secont time I axes you, ah'n't you, please ma'am, gwine fergive me?"

Still from her there was no response. It was as though she had not heard him. The sympathetic sheriff felt moved to add his intercession:

"Aunt Myra," he called, "Jim, here, will be goin' away from us in a minute and we don't expect him back. Surely you don't entertain any hard feelin's against him now? Won't you speak to him and let him go in peace?"

This time the obdurate widow shook her head in an emphatic negative. Yet still she uttered no sound. The sheriff turned to the condemned.

"Jim," he said, "you see how it is; that old woman is set in her ways. What's the use of wastin' any more time on her? Besides, it's hot as the devil out here and I ought to be gettin' on home to dinner. Just hold still a second and we can have this all over."

"Mr. Lucas," sobbed Jim, "lemme see ef I still can't soffen dat nigger woman's stony heart. Lady," he cried out, "wid mounty nigh my dyin' b'ref I begs you fur jest a word. I ah'n't hopin' no mo' dat you'll fergive me, but won't you please, ma'am, jest speak to me an' tell me what's in yore soul?"

And now she did speak. She motioned with her fan as though it had been a baton of authority, and in impatient tones she said:

"Go on, nigger, git hung—git hung!" (Copyright by the Central Press Association.)

Foreign Husbands

Discussing the advisability of an American girl marrying a foreigner, and the superior qualifications of men of the different European countries, Mrs. Alice M. Williamson makes this comment on the American girl in Hearst's International and Cosmopolitan:

"In some respects an American girl is better fitted for an international marriage than girls of other nations because she is so quick-witted and adaptable. But she is handicapped because she has been so spoiled and petted by the men of her own country. No men spoil their women as American men do, and very noble must be the nature of a girl who doesn't take advantage of their kindness."

Potato Reliable Farm Vegetable

In Spring Plow, Disk and Harrow Until Soil Is in Good Condition.

The "Irish" potato seems to me, says a writer in an exchange, to be one of the most profitable and reliable vegetables than can be grown, as it is a crop that very seldom fails.

For early potatoes an ideal place should be selected, such as an old garden spot that has been improved for several years, or a place where clover has been plowed under for several years in succession. The clover causes the land to be rich and loosens up the soil. The soil should be of a medium nature, light sandy just enough to be in a good state of fertilization. Mature the patch broadcast with good stable manure. In doing this not so much is needed in the row at planting time. Break the ground good and deep, then in the spring replot, disk and harrow until the soil is in a good pulverized condition. Lay off the rows 3 or 3½ feet wide, making the rows good and deep. If possible cut your pieces of potatoes so as to have two eyes on each piece and use the whole potato in doing so, as the larger the piece the better the germination and start the young plant will have.

Plant Quite Early.

Plant earlier than any of the rest of your neighbors, say in March, covering the potatoes after dropping, with manure and then deep with soil. Even if the ground does freeze on top the potatoes are getting a start. As soon as the freezing weather has passed take a drag and run it across the patch, then give a harrowing which will again loosen up the soil. Planting at this time, we know it is too cold for the young potatoes to come up, but the pieces will sprout and take root and young potatoes will begin to set on even by the time the plant reaches the top of the ground. Try a small patch planted at this time and see the results, then compare with your neighbors and see if you don't have earlier and better potatoes.

Strawling Late Potatoes.

In strawling late potatoes prepare your ground in the same manner as you would if going to plant without the straw, having it in a good condition for planting. Lay it off in rows about 2½ feet wide and drop the potatoes about 10 or 12 inches apart, covering them with an inch or so of soil. Now bring on your straw and scatter it over the entire field of potatoes to a depth of 3 feet, as after a rain or two the straw will settle down. After the planting is all done, nothing more is required until digging time.

In digging, a manure fork is used, the straw being lifted off and your potatoes are found lying on top of the soil. Planting in this way saves a great deal of time and extra work and they will stand more of a drought than those planted in the soil. The straw, when once it becomes wet, holds the moisture, thus causing the small potatoes to continue growing while, if in the soil, they would not have enough moisture, as it soon becomes dry and hard.

Tricks of Trade During Winter Orchard Pruning

Growers of fruit trees who do their own pruning will find it both interesting and profitable to apply some of the "tricks of the trade" during this winter's pruning. One of the most interesting of these is to put living ties in the tree. They are of principal value when applied to young vigorous trees. If a tree of this type is found to have a scaffold limb which is not firmly knit to the trunk of the tree it can be tied there by twining together two twigs from 6 to 18 inches above the crotch and one of which has its origin from the weak limb and the other from the more solid part of the tree. These should be wrapped around each other as tightly as is possible without breaking the wood and the ends should not be cut off until after several years' growth and the twigs have firmly grafted together. Such treatment will form a living tie which will have a greater strength than any artificial one that could be put in.

Balanced Grain Rations Favored for Dairy Cows

The following balanced grain rations to feed dairy cows cost approximately the same. They are recommended for supplementing corn silage and alfalfa hay, and should be fed at the rate of seven pounds for each pound of butterfat produced.

The first ration is 600 pounds corn meal and 400 pounds bran. The second consists of 500 pounds corn and cob meal, 400 pounds ground oats, and 100 pounds cottonseed meal. The first ration, with corn at $1 per bushel—allowing 12 cents per hundredweight for grinding and bran at $1.25 per hundredweight—costs $1.65 per hundredweight. The second ration—allowing the same price for corn and with ground oats at $1.85 per cwt. and cottonseed meal at $2.45 per cwt.—totals $1.68 per cwt.

Feeding Baby Chicks

Baby chicks must not be fed under 48 hours from the time they are hatched, declared A. G. Phillips, of Purdue university. The yolk of the egg which the chick takes into its body before it is hatched, is provided by nature to furnish food during this length of time. If additional food is given diarrhea and other digestive troubles are likely to result.

Finding New Power

Although their progress is slow and unspectacular, scientists are making dogged attempts to discover a way to make artificial fuels which will replace the diminishing supplies of coal and oil. The process they seek to perform in the laboratories, according to Popular Mechanics Magazine, is the marvelous one that nature uses every day in storing up energy in leaves and plants by converting waste material into wood, etc., under the action of sunlight. Solution of the riddle is being sought in California by Dr. Herman A. Spoehr and a staff of research workers. A year's consumption of coal at the present time represents the accumulation of 400 years, he says.

ERNST LUBITSCH
Production

The genius of Pola Negri flames to the fullest in this sensational drama of royal's secret loves.

From the play "The Czarina" by Lajos Biro and Menyhert Lengyel. Screen play by Agnes Christine Johnson and Hans Kraly. Not since "Passion" has Pola had such a great role. And the support is gilded.

NURSES TOLD TO LET HAIR GROW

Hospitals Put Ban on Bobbed Heads in Wards.

Ottawa.—Bobbed hair is causing a merry old powwow throughout the province of Ontario. Student nurses of the province are aiding the cause of shorn locks against those who would grow them long.

At practically all the hospitals throughout the entire province there is a regulation to the effect that hair must not be cut in the prevailing mode, but that it is to be kept primarily in curls such as was worn by the maidens of the province some years ago.

But the rule, it has been discovered, has not always been patiently obeyed. Nurses at general hospitals and some others who recently desired to follow the example of their sisters outside, were suspended. And now an incipient rebellion against what is considered a needless restriction imposed by years upon youth is reported in a number of institutions.

The nurses claim that the hospitals should be glad to have bobbed student nurses, and that they are sure the patients will agree that the removal of the long tresses goes a long way to brighten up the wards. Some of the students have decided to seek new fields of endeavor as the result of the war waged on the bob, but others say they will stick to their guns, while some have gone so far as to secure legal advice.

Seamen Leave Millions in Little Harbor Bank

New York.—In this day of in-door beds, of kitchens swung on the backs of bathroom doors, or tables drawn from the walls, we seem to have mastered the art of concealment. Accustomed as we are to these features of modern life, we are not used to thinking of big business in small offices.

Yet down near the harbor in New York at 25 South street, there is a million-dollar bank in a 12 by 10 basement room with a tiny corridor barely wide enough for a man to pass through on his way to the teller's window. To seamen it is perhaps the best-known depository in the world. Its depositors represent sixty-seven foreign countries, it hears nearly every known language spoken, and more than $6,500,000 in seamen's wages has come over its counter in the past eleven years.

"I am the crew and the captain, too, and the mate of the Nancy brig," might be said of W. E. Bunce, who runs this bank at the Seamen's Church institute.

"Many of the people who think of the seaman as the proverbial mossless stone will have to change their opinion. During the years 1919-20, the seamen made here deposits of their wages of $1,250,000. Last year was a good year, too. Even though wages and prices were down, we had more depositors than ever. We probably do a bigger business for our cubic space than any other bank in New York."

55 Billion Cups of Coffee Imbued in U. S. in 1924

Washington.—Coffee consumed in the United States last year, amounting to 1,381,787,285 pounds, was figured out by the Commerce department to be equivalent to 55,000,000,000 cups of the beverage, or about 500 for each and every citizen in the land. This was a slight decline, however, from the 1923 consumption, which was estimated at 12.47 pounds per capita, while the 1924 figure was 12.33 pounds.

Total imports of coffee for 1924 were 1,419,152,000 pounds, valued at $249,524,170, but a large part of it was re-exported to other countries. Coffee prices were high during the entire year.

Milady Carries Vanity Box in Umbrella Handle

London.—Umbrellas with handles flat as pancakes have appeared in London and are considered quite the thing among fashionably dressed young women.

The umbrellas are altogether too unwieldy to be carried by the handle, so are attached to the arm by means of a heavy silk cord. But they have the advantage of doing away with the vanity case, for within the flat handle the owner carries her powder box, lip stick, eyelash crayon, a dainty little box of perfume, a three-inch comb, a mirror, and enough hairpins to last her several hours.

Farmers Organize to Combat Wolves

Kingston, Ont.—Farmers in the northern section of Frontenac county have declared war against wolves, which are marauding the vicinity in unusual numbers, and with exceptional boldness, this winter. Wolf-killing clubs have been organized in several of the townships and have bagged pelts galore. At Robertsville the bodies of 12 deer slain by wolves have been found. One of the members of Frontenac county council brought to this city a pelt measuring six feet in length, taken from a wolf shot by a farmer within six feet of his own door.
